CHT Global offers an international conference calling solution to aid multinational corporations in their business communications efforts. The International Toll Free Conferencing Solution offers enterprises a professional communication channel with their global offices, clients, as well as employees operating remotely.

Anytime / Anywhere / Anyone

The International Toll Free Conferencing system is a reservationless system, which means enterprises can conduct their virtual audio conference meetings on demand at any time. Enterprises set up meetings whenever they want 24-7 by just giving out their access number and access code to their participants entering the conference meeting. This also means that participants can access the conference meeting from anywhere, and it could be anyone as well, whether internal employee or client. In fact, the office and an assigned physical location are not even necessary to conduct the meeting as participants can all call in to the virtual conference room remotely.

International Access

For multinational corporations and global enterprises, frequent and quality communication play key roles to building efficiency, effectiveness, and unity in direction. Virtual conference meetings are the best means and cost effective way to gather multiple groups from different offices around the country and around the world to the same place at the same time. To simplify things, CHT Global International Conferencing Solution is easily accessible around the world through toll free access numbers in over 30 countries. So whether it's inhouse communication between different offices, or if it's holding a product briefing meeting with potential clients, the conferencing system acts as the perfect platform for enterprise collaboration.

Simple and Clear Pricing Plan

CHT Global has further simplified the service by reducing costs to only the usage charge. Enterprises using the service will only be charged by a "pay-as-you-go" post-paid model. With this pricing plan, there is no contract, no commitment, no monthly charge, and no hidden charges. Pay only for what you use, and nothing more. The International Toll Free Conferencing solution also boasts some of the most competitive rates both domestically and internationally, and when adding on the added benefit of toll-free access numbers, enterprises will find huge cost savings from using this solution. Put simply, the only fee charged is the [usage rate] x [the number of participants] x [the duration of the conference call]. That's it, it's just that simple!

Save Time, Save Money, Save the Environment

Enterprises making an impact in the world are conscious of making the most out of their time and money. Reducing the time commitment and cost of long distance traveling can pay huge dividends for the productivity of your company. The virtual audio conferencing system does just that by bridging multiple parties together while helping to collectively save on cost. In addition, this effort also helps the environment, as global communication technology can reduce CO2 emission from frequent travel. By just a few simple steps, enterprises can help themselves and vastly benefit others as well. Sign up and begin saving today!
